

River Rase headwaters - Practical conservation workday

Date : Friday 23rd February 2018 – 10.30am – 2pm approx.

Location : River Rase headwaters near Market Rasen and Tealby. MEET AT - Grid Ref: TF 16238 92746 (www.gridreferencefinder.com) – Directions document here.

Details : This is a practical conservation work day near Market Rasen in Lincolnshire. The aim of the practical day is to stop encroachment of the highly invasive 'Snowberry' from the stream banks and surrounding area. These plants can create dense thickets outcompeting both native tree species and smaller ground flora.

Through removing the Snowberry we are able to create a more natural habitat and improve the habitat for water loving creatures such as water vole and brown trout.

Please wear suitable clothing such as long trousers, long sleeved top and waterproofs, just in case! Suitable footwear is essential, either sturdy walking boots or wellingtons. Please bring packed lunch and a drink.

No previous knowledge or experience needed, just your enthusiasm!

Get in touch for full details via Facebook, email william.bartle@lincolnshire.gov.uk or phone 01522 555783.

Our volunteer days are made possible thanks to the continued support of our partners – Environment Agency, Lincolnshire Wolds Countryside Service, Lincolnshire Wildlife Trust, Lincolnshire County Council, The Wild Trout Trust, Natural England and Anglian Water.